>> View collection The National Cinema Museum in Turin makes available films shot in 9,5mm format in several decades, from the early 1920s to the late 1950s. The films are all amateur footage showing plays at home, ceremonies, fragments of trips to the mountains or to the seaside, clips from festivals and parades, etc.. Of particular interest is the amateur documentary „Torino. La città mutilata dalla R.A.F.“ (1942)“ showing the different districts of the city after the bombing in World War II.
